Biographical Note
Margaret Collins Weitz is an author and renowned scholar of French women, French culture and the French Resistance. These interests have fueled her extra-curricular activities; she is a member of the Boston Strasbourg Sister City Association. Three of her notable publications are Femmes et Métiers, 1979; Femmes: Recent Writings on French Women, 1985; Sisters in the Resistance: How Women Fought to Free France 1940-1945, 1996. In addition to being an author, Weitz has spent most of her professional life as a college and university professor.

Margaret Collins Weitz, born in 1929, graduated from St. Ursula’s High School in Toledo, Ohio in 1947, and then attended the University of Toledo (1947–1952) while working full-time as an assistant buyer in retailing. In 1953 she earned a B.A. in Humanities from Ohio State University (OSU) and continued on there as a teaching assistant in the Department of Romance Languages until 1954. While she was a teaching assistant at OSU Weitz was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship and spent the following two years in France. During the fellowship she studied at the University of Poitiers from 1954-1955 and then went on to become the University of Aix-Marseilles’s first Fulbright Lecturer in American Literature and Civilization from 1955-1956. The experience in France influenced her decision to become a French teacher.

After studying in France, Weitz returned to OSU and earned an M.A. in Romance Languages and Literature in 1958 and served as a teaching assistant, from 1956-1959, for that department as well. After receiving her M.A., she became a lecturer then an instructor for the Department of Comparative Literature from 1961-1969. While at OSU she met and married philosopher Morris Weitz. They then left OSU for the Boston area and Weitz enrolled at Harvard University.

Weitz completed her Ph.D. in Romance Languages and Literature at Harvard University in 1975. She spent five years teaching at Harvard University departments of Romance Languages and Literature, Comparative Literature, English and Humanities and a tutor for Eliot House., first as a student and immediately after her graduation. In 1984 she joined Suffolk University’s faculty as Associate Professor of Humanities and Modern Languages.

Weitz’s eighteen year tenure at Suffolk University enriched both the College of Arts and Sciences and Sawyer Business School. She served as Chairperson of the Department of Humanities and Modern Languages from 1984-1994 and 1999-2000. Some of her contributions to the College of Arts and Sciences include developing programs and courses in French art, music, history, literature and international economics. She also contributed to curriculum development in international business for the Sawyer Business School. Weitz received three distinctions from Suffolk University the Phi Alpha Theta named Teacher of the Year in 1987, the Intercultural Initiatives Award in 1993 and a Heritage Medallion in 2005.

Among the many honors and distinctions granted to Weitz were two by the French government: the Officier des Palmes Academiques in 1991 for distinction in the teaching and promotion of French culture and in 2003 she received the Chevalier de l’Ordre National du Mérite, an award for dedication to promoting relations between the recipient’s country and France. A comprehensive list of Weitz’s publications, articles, exhibits, awards and accomplishments can be found in her curriculum vitae. Weitz’s dedication to human rights and the French resistance and extensive connections to other scholars in her field helped her organize four conferences. They were “Contemporary French Civilization”, 1980; “Women and War” in 1984, which produced Behind the Lines: Gender and the Two World Wars, 1987; the “Bicentennial Symposium on Human Rights” in 1989, which produced Celebrating Human Rights, 1994; and “Women and French Resistance” in 1992, which resulted in Memoire et Oubli, 1994.

Weitz is faculty emeriti at Suffolk University and although she officially retired from teaching in 2002, she occasionally teaches on Suffolk’s Boston campus and Suffolk’s semester abroad in Prague. Weitz still actively researches and pursues her scholarly interests. She is a contributing member of the Boston/Strasbourg Sister City Association, the French Library and Cultural Center of Boston and the Shakespeare Institute.

Weitz was widowed in 1981 and has three children; Richard, David and Catherine.

Scope and Content Note

This collection documents Margaret Collins Weitz’s education and professional career as teacher, author, editor, and French cultural historian. The collection materials date from approximately 1945-2006 and contain a mix of professional and personal records; however the collection primarily deals with Weitz’s teaching career, professional life and research interests.

The largest amount of material in the Margaret Collins Weitz Papers covers Weitz’s teaching and writing career. Of particular interest are the research files she compiled while preparing for her book Sisters in the Resistance: How Women Fought to Free France 1940-1945. The research files contain copies of materials from French archives and newspapers. The content of the files include Weitz’s notes, biographical and topical information about women and events during the French Resistance of World War II. In addition to this, transcripts of interviews and correspondence between Weitz and the French women she interviewed or included in her book on the Resistance are also available. Audiocassettes of the interviews Weitz conducted exist; however access and use may be restricted based on the condition of the tape.

Additional materials in the collection include publications by Weitz; press files about publications, exhibits, and conferences produced by Weitz; exhibit materials; conference packets and readings; photographs; correspondence; course materials and readings on French women and French society. It is unclear whether these materials are part of Weitz’s research or were assigned readings for courses that she taught.

One unique aspect of the Margaret Collins Weitz Papers is that it contains French and English language materials. Files containing French language materials are noted on the box and folder list. Archivists tried to maintain the original folder titles; however where it was necessary extra information was added to clarify meaning or keep like files together. It is also important to note that many of Weitz’s research files contain reprints of, among others, early seventeenth-century publications from ‘modern journals’. Because of this, these folders may be classified as having no date so to not skew the actual date range of the materials within the collection.
