Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q30. It is estimated that each person in the United States would have to pay just over forty-six thousand dollars to completely pay off the national debt. Knowing this, how much more in federal taxes would you be willing to pay if you knew that all the money would go only towards paying off the national debt?

Q50. MLB recently outlawed performance enhancing drugs which could prohibit players from being inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Do you believe players should be prohibited from being inducted because of the recent rule change, despite the fact that the rule was not enforced during their careers?
